Historically, honey bees have had a special place in the hearts, imaginations, and economies of human beings. Honey bees are fascinating, and beekeeping is a pastime that can be beneficial and enjoyable in many ways.

For most hobbist (backyard) beekeepers, it's neither the products (honey, wax, propolis, royal jelly & pollen) nor the beneficial environmental work of the bees that gets us into beekeeping; it's about the wonder of having a complex society of 30,000+ amazing creatures living in a human-made box that we can keep in our own backyard and open anytime that we want ! 🐝

Here's a great chance to become more aware of, and in-touch with, the world around us. More specifically, this is an opportunity to dabble in wood working, biology, agriculture, animal husbandry, food production, botony, marketing and entrepreneurship!

The course fee includes all of the day's presentations, workshops & demonstrations, plus breakfast, lunch & break snacks & drinks, a fantastic handout package with bee catalogs & a magazine, a full-color textbook, as well as a one-year membership in the Tara Club!
